

Site: Face Mountain (Mars)

Overview: A colossal, face-shaped mountain on Mars, hiding an ancient Atlantean outpost beneath its surface. The air is thin, gravity is low, and the tech is alien.

Portal: A seamless granite door embedded in the mountain's "mouth," quantum-locked. Requires a battery and a navigation crystal to activate.

Discovery: Science/Arcana roll (DC 18) to find the door and decipher Martian glyphs. Avoid detection by automated sentries.

Puzzle: Solve a holographic star-map puzzle and synchronize the portal with Earth. Power the door with a battery.

Success: Access to the Martian outpost, find an Atlantean key, and a message from the "Red Watchers." Gain a vision of the final Giza repository.

Failure: Sentries activate, or the portal destabilizes (risk of being stranded on Mars).

Item Drops: Atlantean key, Martian battery, fragment of a navigation map.

Revelations:

- As the portal hums, a voice echoes: "You will need three keys, three batteries, and the wisdom of the ancients to open the last door. Only those who have heard the rites of three lands may pass."
- A vision of Toth appears, his eyes glowing with ancient light: "The pyramid must rise again, or all will be lost to the sands of time."
- The walls shimmer with hidden glyphs: "A dormant generator can be awakened with a battery—seek the sunken city, but beware what sleeps beneath the waves."