

A Message from Thoth the Atlantean

Listen, seeker of ancient lore, whose spirit yearns for truths of yore.
Below the sun-kissed, mortal ground, where silent knowledge can be found.
The Repository lies in wait, guarded by shadows, sealed by fate.
To reach my chamber, deep within, a path of trials must begin.
Seek first the gate, where whispers guide, and shadows lengthen, side by side.
Unravel riddles, test your will, ascend the passages, dark and still.
Through chambers echoing with time, ascend to wisdom's peak sublime.
Then shall you find the place I keep, where timeless mysteries softly sleep.
Come, brave one, the journey calls, beyond these transient, earthly walls.
