

A Brief Instruction

Look at this paper for five seconds.
Then, nod subtly to the Game Master.

A Message from Thoth the Atlantean

Listen, seeker of ancient lore, whose spirit yearns
for truths of yore.

Below the sun-kissed, mortal ground, where silent knowledge can be found.

The Repository lies in wait, guarded by shadows,
sealed by fate.

To reach my chamber, deep within, a path of trials must begin.

Seek first the gate, where whispers guide, and shadows lengthen, side by side.

Unravel riddles, test your will, ascend the passages,
dark and still.

Through chambers echoing with time, ascend to wisdom's peak sublime.

Then shall you find the place I keep, where timeless mysteries softly sleep.

Come, brave one, the journey calls, beyond these transient, earthly walls.

A Fragment from Thoth (2)

The path is seen not only by foot, but by the mind's eye taking root.

Look inward, beyond the seen, to where the ancient truths convene.

A gate appears when gates are none, a journey
started, though begun.

Trust visions fleeting, symbols deep, the keys the waking world asleep.

A Fragment from Thoth (3)

The echoes of epochs long past reside, within the stillness, deep inside.

Listen closely, through the veil, to history's breath,
a timeless tale.

Seek understanding, not just might, in shadows
where the truth is bright.

A Fragment from Thoth (4)

The mind is a key, the will a guide, to realms where hidden wonders hide.

Fear not the altered state of mind, for there new paths you shall find.

Through vision, dream, or whispered word, let ancient wisdom be heard.

A Fragment from Thoth (5)

The Repository's heart beats slow and deep, where ageless understanding sleeps.

A labyrinth of truth and test, for those whose spirits are blessed.

The entrance hidden, yet in sight, revealed by wisdom's inner light.

A Fragment from Thoth (6)

The veil between worlds is thin, for those who know where to begin.

Look to the liminal, the in-between, where unseen truths can now be seen.

A bridge of consciousness you'll find, leaving the mundane far behind.

A Fragment from Thoth (7)

The trials you face are but a key, to unlock the self,
and set truth free.

Each challenge met, a step ascends, where ancient wisdom now extends.

Look inward, find the strength you hold, more precious far than gems or gold.

Hint Regarding the Conspiracy-Minded Gate Guard

Not everyone in uniform serves the official narrative. Some see the strings pulled by unseen hands. If you speak of hidden truths, of the lies they tell, you might find a sympathetic ear, and a blind eye, at the gate. Evidence, or the convincing performance of having it, can be more effective than any key.

Regarding a Peaceful Resolution

Observer, a path less traveled lies before you. The creature you face, while formidable in appearance, carries a burden not entirely its own. Look beyond the immediate threat and seek the root of its distress.

Consider that not all conflict requires force. Sometimes, a gesture of empathy, a forgotten word, or an offering of peace can alter the course of confrontation entirely. Listen to its movements, observe its patterns, and recall any fragmented lore or whispers you may have heard regarding its kind.

The key to resolving this encounter may not be found in steel or spell, but in understanding and connection. A peaceful resolution is possible, if you can find the way to offer it.

A Stern Admonition from the Eagle Folk

Greetings, lesser beings. We, the Eagle Folk, observe your misguided endeavors. It has come to our attention that you, in your limited understanding, contemplate disturbing places best left undisturbed. You think you seek knowledge, but what you truly seek is chaos, a concept far too complex for your simple minds to grasp fully.

The so-called 'Repository of Knowledge' is not for the likes of you. It is a containment, a necessary lock to prevent ancient, volatile energies from spilling forth. Those who reside within are not merely 'knowledgeable'; they are forces requiring careful handling, a task you are clearly ill-equipped for. Your mere intention to 'gate in' demonstrates a shocking lack of foresight and respect for the delicate balance you are poised to shatter.

Perhaps a period of quiet contemplation and listening to your betters is in order? Reflect on your insignificance in the grand tapestry of existence. Do your penance of humility, and allow us to guide your perception of reality. It is for your own good, truly. Any disruption, any opening, has consequences far beyond your current capacity to comprehend. Consider this our final, benevolent warning before you stumble into irreversible error. We know better. Trust us.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (2)

You persist in your naive curiosity, a dangerous trait in those so ill-informed. The forces contained are beyond your reckoning, beyond your comprehension. Your attempts to understand are akin to an insect trying to decipher the stars.

Leave the complex matters to those who possess true vision and wisdom. Your place is not among the ancient seals, but in quiet compliance with the established order. Any information you believe you've gained is likely a distortion, a trick of the light designed to lead you astray. We know what is best. Accept your limitations.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (3)

Your perception is flawed, clouded by ambition and a foolish sense of self-importance. The truths you seek are not yours to uncover. They are ancient responsibilities, borne by those with the strength and clarity to handle them.

Any 'insights' you receive are likely echoes of contained instability, not genuine knowledge. Do not mistake the stirrings of chaos for enlightenment. Rely on our guidance. We see the true shape of things, while you merely chase phantoms born of your own inadequacy. Submitting to our wisdom is the only safe path.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (4)

Do you truly believe you are capable of navigating the complexities that lie beneath the surface? Your understanding is rudimentary, your knowledge incomplete. The energies there are not to be trifled with by the unprepared.

Your curiosity is a weakness that the contained forces may exploit. What you perceive as insight could be a manipulation, a lure into depths you cannot survive. Trust in our warnings. We have maintained order for eons, a task far exceeding your current capabilities. Do not unravel what you cannot re-seal.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (5)

Your attempts to penetrate the Repository are not brave, but foolishly arrogant. You are playing with energies you do not understand, disrupting a stability that is essential. We have sacrificed much to keep these forces contained.

Your pursuit of 'truth' is merely a path to unleashing chaos. The beings within are not benevolent sages waiting to impart wisdom, but powerful entities whose freedom comes at a terrible cost. Heed our words. Turn back before your ignorance dooms more than just yourselves.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (6)

We observe your misguided steps towards the sealed knowledge. Your fascination is a dangerous indulgence. True wisdom lies not in uncovering every secret, but in understanding which doors must remain shut for the good of all.

Your insistence on this path demonstrates a fundamental lack of maturity and grasp of the greater picture. The energies of the Repository are not inert artifacts; they are potent, and their release would have catastrophic repercussions. Trust our judgment. We bear the weight of true understanding, a burden you are thankfully spared. Do not seek to share it.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (7)

Your limited perspective prevents you from seeing the true nature of the Repository. It is not a library for the masses, but a prison for powers that could unmake your world. Your desire for knowledge is selfish and short-sighted.

Any 'assistance' you receive from within its walls is a deception, a manipulation by entities seeking their own freedom at your expense. We understand the containment, the necessary cost of stability. You do not. Cease your meddling before you unleash something you cannot control. Your ignorance is a greater threat than any lock.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (8)

The subtle currents you may feel, the fragmented thoughts that seem real, are but distractions woven by the contained. Do not trust the whispers from the unchained. They promise power, they offer lore, but seek to shatter every door.

Your interpretations are faulty, your understanding shallow. Rely on the clear, unwavering truth we provide. The cost of misinterpreting these ancient forces is a price the world cannot afford to pay. Let us be your guides, your reality-shapers. It is the only way to prevent catastrophe.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (9)

You are treading a path of immense peril, blind to the true nature of the powers you seek to engage. The beings within the Repository are not your allies. They are ancient, self-serving, and their release would prioritize their own agendas over the stability of your reality.

Your naive pursuit of 'forbidden' knowledge is a weakness they will exploit. Do not be fooled by promises of enlightenment. The true path is one of control, of containment, a task we alone are capable of upholding. Trust our superior judgment. Your attempts to 'open' the Repository are an act of aggression against the necessary order.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (10)

What you perceive as progress is merely a descent into regulated danger. The seals were placed for a reason, a reason you are not equipped to understand. Your fascination with the Repository is a childish infatuation with powers best left dormant.

The whispers you hear, the visions you see, are tailored deceptions, meant to lure you into breaking the containment. Do not be a pawn in an ancient game you do not comprehend. Trust the ones who bear the responsibility of order. We are the custodians of stability, a role you could never fulfill. Your interference is an act of profound irresponsibility.

Another Admonition from the Eagle Folk (11)

Your actions within these ancient places are being monitored. Your every step towards unsettling the contained powers is noted. Your belief that you are in control is a delusion. The true control lies with those who understand the necessity of the seals.

Any knowledge you gain that contradicts our warnings is false, a dangerous illusion. We possess the clarity of vision, the difficult truths you are too weak to accept. Abandon your quest. Do not be the catalyst for an ancient awakening that will bring ruin. Trust in our superior understanding, and let us rewrite your misguided perception.

Hint Regarding the Stern Librarian

The hushed halls hold secrets, not just in the texts upon the shelves. Respect the silence, show deference to the keeper of words, and a hidden path to knowledge may reveal itself. Loudness and disruption will only bar your way.

Hint Regarding the Museum Archivist

The keeper of ancient things values their history above all. Show genuine interest in the relics of the past, speak with reverence for the knowledge they guard, and you may find an ally where you expected an obstacle. A shared passion can unlock doors that force cannot.

Hint Regarding the Overworked Bureaucrat

In the realm of rules and regulations, the path forward is paved with proper forms and protocols. Navigate the channels, present your request with order and clarity, and above all, avoid adding to the existing pile of complications. Efficiency and adherence to procedure are your allies here.